Handshake is the platform we use to connect with all of our students who are looking for jobs, and it's how we post our jobs. It's also how students can reach out to one another and kind of connect about different jobs that they've had or what it's like. Working on campus. My name is Elizabeth. I am a student employee at SRJC and I work in Workforce Development and the Career Hub doing a lot of. Like screening for students checking eligibility, posting jobs, just a lot of like. Workforce involved things getting students working on campus and so all students at the JC. They already have a handshake account. Uhm, they the school has it automatically made for us and we just have to sign in and complete our profile, which is kind of nice. It takes a lot of the. Technical hard steps out of it for students. Uhm, but you will just go to the Career Hub website and there's a little hyper link for you to click on and you put in your normal that we have at the JC called a single sign on and we use that for like canvas. Our financial aid it's. ID student, student ID and password that we use, so you'll use that same one to log into here. Check and it'll just ask you to complete your profile and then you're good to go to start looking at jobs. Yeah, so it's completely free. Nothing like fee wise that's associated with it. Handshake is just kind of equal playing field for students and employers. So like it will automatically fill out your profile with some of your basic academic information. Such as like your major that's on your Ed plan. That's really the only thing I would say that it auto fills in, otherwise it will ask like basic information like what you're interested in pursuing, what classes you've taken, as well as like. Just your first name, last name. It just seems like it's more of a student friendly. Platform try using handshake to find a job. That works for you.
